BOSTON, Oct. 14 /PRNewswire/ -- Supply Chain Visions, Inc., a thought leader in supply chain strategy and performance management, has been selected, as a subcontractor to Deloitte Consulting LLP, to provide technical and analytical support to the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) for the development of an enterprise staffing model for forward presence personnel.

DLA has established new strategic objectives, which include "Extending the Enterprise," "Connect Warfighter Demand with Supply," and "Deliver Supply Chain Excellence." DLA employees, inventories and logistics capabilities will be located forward to capitalize on best value opportunities to improve warfighter readiness.

"In the future, DLA resources will geographically align with supported activities far more than today," states Lt. Gen. Robert T. Dail, Director, Defense Logistics Agency. "While agency Supply and Distribution Centers will remain activity hubs, DLA employees, inventories and logistics capabilities will be located forward, beyond traditional agency borders to capitalize on best value opportunities to improve warfighter readiness."

"The forward presence initiative is a key evolution in improving support to the warfighter, and we're proud to work with Deloitte Consulting," stated Steve Geary, president of Supply Chain Visions, Inc. "It's a natural extension of the supply chain work we have done for the warfighter on the ground in Iraq, and the work Deloitte has done to help the government with service delivery models at other agencies."

About Supply Chain Visions
